Module 8

Website Organization

        Until this module was announced I didn't know it was possible to put things in different folders and still be able to find them on Github. To be honest, it was driving my completely insane having things all together and being forced to search through them. I tend to be a folder inside a folder inside a folder inside a folder person. Although I did manage to control myself for the sake of shorter links.

        I went with a very simple organizing plan. I created three different folders, "img", "pdf" and "psd" and then put each file type in their respective folder. Just this simple action put most of my nerves at ease, and makes it much easier for me to find things. Luckily I was already pleased with my file names, they're simple, short, and usually are a quick description regarding which file it is. For example, "module2", "module3", "fullsitemap".
